

---

April 16, 2021

Earth Day 2021: Restore Our Earth

Last year on Earth Day, we celebrated 50 years of fighting for a better world. This year the theme is Restore our Earth. To restore our earth we will have to establish new ways of fighting for the future of humanity and the Earth we all share.

Earth Day online celebrations begin on April 20, with a global Youth Climate Summit, followed by a Global education summit on the 21, and the Earth Day Live digital show on the 22.

We encourage members to learn more and take part in all the events at <https://www.earthday.org/earth-day-2021/> – which is available in ten languages, including English and French.

The first day's youth summit will have panels, speeches, discussions, and special messages with youth climate activists including Greta Thunberg. In the evening of April 20, the "We Shall Breathe" virtual summit will examine climate and environmental justice through a racial justice framework.

Day two is the "Teach for the Planet: Global Education Summit," focused on the role educators play in combating climate change and why we need transformative climate education now.

Day three is the second Earth Day Live digital event, beginning at noon Eastern Time. The event includes workshops, panel discussions and special performances.

You can also follow the events on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/EarthDayNetwork>

Throughout the day on April 22, CUPW will be sharing links to live broadcasts. You can find the links at @cupw or @DeliverComPower on twitter, <https://www.facebook.com/cupwsttp>, and by signing up for eDigest at <http://www.cupw.ca/cupw-eDigest>.

Take a screenshot of yourself participating in any of these on-line events and tag us in your posts, and/or share them with us at feedback@cupw-sttp.org.

Capitalism hasn't been good for the planet. Celebrate Earth Day every day!

In solidarity,

Julee Sanderson
1st National Vice-President

Dave Bleakney
2nd National Vice-President

2019-2023 / Bulletin # 254
/bk cope 225