CANADIAN UNION OF POSTAL WORKERS
SYNDICAT DES TRAVAILLEURS ET TRAVAILLEUSES DES POSTES

REPORT ON

INTERNATIONAL SOLIDARITY WORK

INTERNATIONAL SOLIDARITY

CUPW has always been committed to international solidarity, which is why it negotiated, in 2000, the International Postal Fund, under Appendix “R” of the collective agreement. This fund helps support our involvement in the international labour movement, finance solidarity projects with postal unions, and much more.

CUPW is also committed to direct involvement here in Canada through concrete actions in conjunction with labour and civil society organizations. The purpose of these actions is to raise membership awareness, through education, of the struggles being waged around the globe.

This report is divided into two sections. The first section provides an overview of our activities and projects within the international labour movement, and the second provides an update on our work with organizations in this country.

ACTIVITIES AND PROJECTS WITH THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR MOVEMENT

- International Postal Fund (Appendix “R”): Operation

To fund its participation in international activities, the Union relies mainly on Appendix “R” of the urban operations collective agreement, which requires Canada Post to pay $200,000 into the International Postal Fund in each of its fiscal years. Participation in an international delegation or joint project with an international partner must be discussed, and voted on, by the CUPW National Executive Board (NEB).

Once the NEB adopts a resolution, the National Executive Committee implements it. Financial reports are submitted to the employer periodically; and the employer reimburses the Union’s expenses.

During this past term, the Union took full advantage of the International Postal Fund paid by Canada Post, since expenses incurred for these projects totalled almost the maximum allowable amount, i.e. $200,000.00, annually.

Some of our international activities are financed by other funds than Appendix “R.” For example, our participation in the Rutgers conferences or the various climate or COP conferences is financed through Appendix “T” of the urban collective agreement. Other activities are financed using the external organizing budget or through the General Fund.

- Work within the International Labour Movement

CUPW elected representatives, NEB members, union representatives, local presidents, etc. play an active role in activities and meetings organized by UNI Global Union and the International Transport Federation (ITF). Here are the positions that some CUPW officers hold within UNI:

- UNI World Committee:
George Floresco, 3rd National Vice-President, member of the World Committee;
Jan Simpson, 1st National Vice-President, first alternate;
Beverley Collins, National Secretary-Treasurer, second alternate.
- UNI World Women's Committee:
Anny Lesage, Regional Union Representative, Metro-Montreal Region, member of the UNI World Women's Committee, representing women in the Americas.
- UNI Americas Post and Logistics: Jan Simpson, Vice-President.
- UNI-Americas Steering Committee and trustee: George Floresco.

International solidarity work requires ongoing participation by CUPW in outside activities, which help optimize UNI's operation, among other things.

At the 2011 National Convention, the Union adopted another resolution to implement a selection process among CUPW members and enable rank-and-file members to be part of delegations to international activities.

Throughout this term, the Union was directly involved in more than 50 activities, with delegations to the different UNI bodies, to the World Social Forum, Cuba, Colombia, Chili, Argentina, Brazil, West Africa, Palestine and the United States.

Over a hundred brothers and sisters, some more than once, were able to take part in these international activities, including May Day in Cuba, the World Social Forum in Montreal and Brazil, and Labor Notes in Chicago. These delegations included a majority of CUPW rank-and-file members (see a chronology of events, attached).

During this past term, our work with the International Transport Federation (ITF) was minimal. Unfortunately, following the transportation sector meeting in Toronto during this term, we were not directly involved in activities. However, we did attend the joint UNI/ITF meeting on organizing at Amazon, and the ITF women's meeting in Marrakech, Morocco, in November 2017.

IMPORTANT PARTICIPATION

Each time CUPW takes part in an international activity, its presence is noted. Members of our delegations arrive well prepared and make intelligent remarks, sharing their analysis of the postal sector and the Union's projects and clearly expressing our solidarity with current struggles around the world.

Our representation work is flawless. The brothers and sisters who took part in delegations, giving their time to raise awareness of international realities and getting fully involved in their role as representatives within their delegation, deserve our thanks. We should take great pride in their contributions. Quite often, CUPW is invited to make a presentation at such an event, and the CUPW delegation organizes a specific activity around the postal service.

Here are three international activities where CUPW's presence and effectiveness were particularly important:

- World Social Forums: Montreal and Salvador Da Bahia

During this term, we took part in two social forums, where CUPW had a visible impact.

The first took place in Montreal, from August 9 to 16, 2016.

It was an opportunity to raise awareness of our vision for the future. The “Delivering Community Power” booklet was discussed at various panels and distributed at an information table that attracted hundreds of people.

The second WSF took place in Salvador da Bahia (Brazil), from March 13 to 17, 2018.

We were greeted by brothers and sisters from the postal sector (SINCOTELBA), who accompanied us throughout our stay in Brazil. We visited a postal facility, met with rank-and-file members, made a presentation on our public and universal postal service, and were able to speak to the SINCOTELBA delegation during the mass demonstration that took place to open the forum. Here is what one member of the delegation wrote in his report:

“Despite the language barrier, trade unionists from Correios – the less and less public post office – welcomed us with the best face of international solidarity. They shared their reality with us and described the attacks on them in the context of a neoliberal government that slashes public spending while attacking workers’ rights...”

Our participation in the Salvador da Bahia World Social Forum enabled us to strengthen our relationship with Brazil's postal federation (FENTECT), which later invited CUPW to attend their June 2018 Convention.

- Women's Conferences

CUPW was well represented at all meetings organized for women, including the UNI Americas Regional Women's Committee, twice, the UNI World Women's Conference in June 2018, and the ITF Conference in 2017.

CUPW sisters were able to have their say at international meetings. It should be noted that UNI has a policy that promotes the participation of women at all constitutional meetings.

- Major Conferences On the Environment

CUPW took part in every climate conference (COP), sending a delegation made up of a national officer and at least one person working under Appendix "T". CUPW joined the Canadian Labour Congress delegation at each of these conferences.

It is essential that CUPW attend these conferences. Members of the delegations take part in discussions and decision-making, allowing CUPW to keep abreast of environment-related information and continue promoting a postal service that is respectful of the environment through its "Delivering Community Power" vision.

PROJECTS WITH LABOUR PARTNERS

During the past term, CUPW continued using Appendix "R" to fund various projects in conjunction with unions in the Americas, Palestine and French Africa.

These projects have to be conducted in conjunction with unions in the postal and logistics sector. This is a requirement of the International Postal Fund.

Below is an update on the projects that CUPW has supported financially during the past term:

- Colombia: Project With STPC

Our relationship with postal workers in Colombia dates back to the early 2000s. We have had projects with the Colombian Postal Workers' Union (Sindicato de los trabajadores postales de Colombia-STPC) for over 15 years.

During the past term, we were part of two Frontline tour delegations, in July 2015 and January 2019, organized in conjunction with two Canadian public sector unions (CUPE and PSAC) and a Vancouver-based solidarity organization (CoDev). The goal of these regular Frontline tours is to support the work of the organizations we conduct projects with, assess the organizing situation in Colombia and take stock of potential solidarity projects.

In January 2017, the National Executive Board adopted a resolution to conduct a two-year project with the Colombian Postal Workers' Union (STPC).

This 2017-2018 project had the following three objectives:

1. Continuing the basic training and organizing of workers in the postal service and courier sector;
2. Developing education material on advocating for members' rights;
3. Conducting a special assessment project on the privatization of the Colombian postal service in 2006 and organizing workers at the "472" postal company.

Because of the situation in Colombia, the project was extended until the spring of 2019, and we are currently in the final phase of the project.

The first two objectives were met; organizing is continuing, and education material has been produced.

As for the third objective, communication problems with the workers delayed implementation. It will be up to the next CUPW NEB to determine what our relationship with the STPC will look like over the coming years.

- Cuba (SNTCIE)

Our relationship with the postal sector workers' union (Sindicato nacional trabajadores comunicación, informática y electrónica - SNTCIE) also dates back several years.

In 2016, 2017 and 2018, CUPW selected members of a delegation to take part in May Day activities in Havana.

The May Day program is always quite busy. In addition to making contacts with postal sector workers, the delegation takes part in an international solidarity conference, visits historical sites, and participates in discussions with civil society organizations, etc. This is a unique opportunity to witness a different society, one built on sharing and solidarity.

Of note, the Atlantic Region has an international solidarity fund, which it used to send a delegation to May Day events in Cuba.

During the 2016 May Day events, discussions took place to implement a joint project with the SNTCIE. These discussions continued in the fall of 2016, and a joint project was put on paper.

The project stems from changes to the labour laws designed to make unions take ownership of all aspects of labour laws, social security and wage standardization.

This project is entitled “Training Cuban Postal Sector Union Leaders.” To facilitate its implementation, the project covered the years 2017 and 2018. First, the project took place in two regions of Cuba, Ciego de Avila and Camaguey, but because of delays around the availability of electronic equipment, the project was moved to the Havana region and will continue in 2019. It should be noted that Sister Milagros Valles was replaced as General Secretary of the union.

As noted above, projects are implemented over a two-year period instead of one. This gives us a better perspective and allows us to more closely monitor the project.

During this past term, we provided financial assistance to two projects that can be described as one-time projects. We received a specific request from a union, reviewed the request and decided that it could strengthen the union involved. Neither project cost more than $2,500.00 each.

- El Salvador: Sitracorreas

The first of these projects was conducted with the Sindicato de Trabajadores de la Dirección de Correos de El Salvador (SITRACORREOS), which represents the 750 Salvadorian postal workers, who have been covered by a collective agreement for just a few years. The request was to support their “union school,” which we did.

- Venezuela: Sintracom (Sindicato De Trabajadores De Comunicación)

The second request we received was from the Venezuelan postal workers’ union. Preliminary meetings had taken place with the President of the Union when a Canadian delegation monitored the elections in April 2018. Discussions then continued with the adoption of a project to organize a tour of the 23 regions in Venezuela to meet with rank-and-file members and strengthen their membership in the union.

- French Africa

CUPW had not had a concrete project with French Africa for several years. As a result, it paid special attention to the issue and found, in UNI, a partner with expertise in Africa and an organizing structure already in place.

CUPW has been supporting a project since 2017 that was initially designed to review the level of organizing in the postal and courier industry in 11 countries of French Africa. In reviewing results, we realized that we could have an impact in three countries: Ivory Coast, Niger and Cameroon.

Then, during a joint training session, each of the unions involved developed a response plan and set concrete organizing objectives.

Launched in 2016, the project really kicked into gear in the fall of 2017 with an organizing campaign in each country. An assessment meeting took place in the fall of 2018. It confirmed the success of the organizing campaign in each country and the organizers' enthusiasm, since each union saw its membership increase significantly.

- Palestine: PPSWU (Palestine Postal Sector Workers Union)

Since the adoption, in 2008, of the resolution to support the campaign of boycott, divestment and sanctions against Israel (BDS campaign), CUPW had been trying to develop a relationship with a Palestinian union in the postal sector.

This relationship came to fruition in 2015 at a meeting with the PPSWU, a postal union created in 2010 that represents workers at the Palestinian Post, which falls under the Palestinian Authority (PA). From our early interaction, we realized we had a common vision of trade union work and democratic participation by rank-and-file members.

However, we noted that the PPSWU did not have a union infrastructure in place and was not holding regular membership meetings or decision-making conferences. At the request of the PPSWU leadership, we supported regular meetings of its steering committee and an annual conference of all members. In addition, we supported the PPSWU's participation at various international meetings, as well as its request to join UNI.

We were able to see the impact of our project directly by participating in the last two PPSWU annual conferences (May 2016 and June 2018). Each time, we saw the commitment and determination of rank-and-file members. For example, at the last conference, more than 130 members from the 11 locals were in attendance. This two-day conference was an important milestone for training on union rights and international solidarity.

In addition, our cooperation with the PPSWU enabled us to support Brother Imad Timeiza's participation in various educational activities throughout Canada, such as the Union Education Program (UEP), activities in various locals, conferences and panels in Montreal and Toronto, etc. This project will continue over the next two years, the National Executive Board having adopted a resolution to that effect.

Part of the project will also be conducted in conjunction with UNI, which will allow for greater coordination of training efforts and the integration of the PPSWU into UNI.

OUR SOLIDARITY WORK IN CANADA AND QUEBEC

CUPW has always responded to the requests it receives from civil organizations planning support activities or tours by representatives of solidarity groups. We support, among others, Independent Jewish Voices, Canada Talks Israel/Palestine, Échec à la guerre, Centre international de solidarité ouvrière (CISO), International Civil Liberties Monitoring Group (ICMLG), etc. During this past term, we focused our activities on the following organizations: Common Frontiers, the Americas Policy Group (APG) and the Canadian Labour Congress' Advisory Committee.

- Common Frontiers

CUPW has been a member of Common Frontiers for many years. This organization, which is financed by many unions and other international solidarity organizations, is a working group that challenges economic integration in the Americas and proposes alternatives. Free trade is at the heart of its actions.

Not only do we support Common Frontiers financially, but also through logistical support and active participation in its activities. In recent years, the group's annual meetings have taken place at our national office, in Ottawa. We also supported meetings held in Mexico and Canada to plan activities against the renewal of the North-American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). We also took part in the delegation to monitor elections in Venezuela in 2018.

Common Frontiers' annual meetings are also a unique opportunity to discuss our analysis of the situation in the Americas with individuals from a variety of backgrounds. Its website also gives access to analyses that cannot be found in the traditional media.

- Americas Policy Group (APG)

CUPW's association with the APG happened naturally in light of the Union's marked interest for the Americas and the involvement of unions such as the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) with whom we organized the Frontline Tour in Colombia.

The APG includes labour organizations and international solidarity organizations such as Inter Pares, CoDev, CISO, and many more.

This is a forum for resourcing and debate. The APG is very important for two major reasons:

- It allows for proper planning of activities by each participating member, while sharing resources. For example, because of our ties with CoDev, we were able to take part in the labour leaders' tour of the Buenaventura civil strike in Colombia.

- The APG is hosted by the Canadian Council for International Co-operation (CCIC), which is one of the stakeholders in Global Affairs Canada. This enabled us to meet, on several occasions, with the individuals responsible for issues of concern to us: human rights in Colombia and elsewhere in the Americas, Canadian government policy, questioning of trade agreements with countries in the South, raising awareness among members of Parliament, etc. We must take advantage of all available forums to make our case.

We gave the APG the same cooperation we provide to Common Frontiers (funding, meeting place, etc.), in addition to dealing with expenditures. The APG meets at least once a year to take stock and develop a plan of action. To promote greater participation, meetings take place in various cities.

In closing, it should be noted that the APG has set up a working group on Haiti. During the next term, we will have to pay special attention to this group because the Union hopes to develop cooperation with Haitian workers.

- Canadian Labour Congress (CLC) International Advisory Committee

The Canadian Labour Congress' Advisory Committee meets twice a year. Its main objective is to share views on international solidarity work, but also to discuss "hot" issues and, if necessary, make recommendations to the CLC. For example, after discussing the situation in the Middle East, the Committee suggested to the CLC leadership that it organize a tour in Palestine, which the CLC will be doing in the coming year.

This is a brief overview of our involvement in international solidarity work, an essential component of a meaningful, active union life.
