

December 11, 2014

One year later, CUPW vows to restore home mail delivery

Problems with your new community mailbox?
Want home mail delivery back? We want to help!

Reprinted with permission of The Vaughan Citizen and postnation.com

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers believes that everyone in urban areas deserves home mail delivery.

Working with other organizations to Save Canada Post, we intend to:

- Preserve home mail delivery for those who have it.
- Restore home mail delivery for those who have lost it.
- Expand home mail delivery in areas that already have community mailboxes, as Canada Post's finances allow.

There is a federal election coming. The Conservatives support the elimination of door-to-door delivery.

CUPW will be asking opposition parties to restore your home mail delivery.

To see how you can help, go to savecanadapost.ca or call toll free 855.878.7111.

Save Canada Post

Produced by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

There is no reason why Canada should be the first country in the world to lose home mail delivery. Most disadvantaged are seniors and people with disabilities.

The problems of community mailboxes are well known:

- noise
- litter
- traffic congestion
- slips and falls while retrieving mail in the winter
- theft
- no snow removal
- frozen locks
- reduced property values.

If you have problems with your community mailbox, we want to help you raise your issues with Canada Post and the federal government.

You can call us toll free at 855.878.7111, email us at SaveCanadaPost@cupw-sttp.org or write to Save Canada Post at 377 Bank Street, Ottawa, Ontario, K2P 1Y3. You can also fill out a complaint form online by going to SaveCanadaPost.ca.

CUPW 1979

- Restore home mail delivery for those who have lost it.
- Expand home mail delivery in areas that already have community mailboxes, as Canada Post's finances allow.

CUPW is distributing a flyer with the above messages.

The flyer also encourages affected households to let the CUPW know what their complaints are so that the union can help them raise their issues with Canada Post and the federal government. It also reminds people that the federal Conservatives support the home delivery cuts and that there is a federal election coming. CUPW will be asking opposition parties to restore home mail delivery in the upcoming election.

In solidarity,

George Floresco
3rd National Vice- President

2011-2015 / Bulletin # 345
/bkcope225

On December 11, 2013, Canada Post announced large rate hikes and sweeping changes to public postal service, including a decision to take away home mail delivery and force 5 million households to use community mailboxes (CMBs).

A year later, CUPW members in locations that have lost delivery are going door-to-door to tell affected residents that the union intends to:

- Preserve home mail delivery for those who have it.